A CONSTANT READER.

——— "I dare, with Truth, commend
"The decent Stage, as Virtue's nat'ral Friend;
"Tho' oft debas'd with Scenes profane and looſe,
"No Reaſon weighs againſt its proper Uſe:
"Tho' the lewd Prieſt, his ſacred Function ſhame,
"Religion's perfect Law is ſtill the ſame.——"

THE Praiſes and Advantages of the DRAMA, have employed the Pens, of ſo many moral, as well as ingenious Writers, and is a Subject ſo exhauſted, that the moſt difficult Taſk will be, to avoid repeating what has already been ſaid in its Favour.

Its Antiquity, and the Ardour wherewith it has been cultivated, in ſome of the moſt renowned States, ever ſince thoſe Periods, when Literature dawned forth, and began to illumine and enlarge the natural Faculties of Man, is alone ſufficient to evince its Utility.—We find that at Athens, once the Seat of the Arts and Sciences, the School of Philoſophers, the Center of Politeneſs, and the Fountain, from whence we have derived ſome of the moſt inſtructive Leſſons of Morality, the Drama was warmly promoted and encouraged.—To the Theatre, the brave Hero, who had toiled in the Field of Honour and laviſhed his Blood in his Country's Cauſe, came to enjoy Amuſements, which, far from unmaning, elevated his Soul, and re animated him in his glorious Career.—Thoſe great Sages too, of old, who, in Spite of popular Prejudice and Country-Cuſtom, and who, ſolely by the Light of Reaſon, without the Aid of divine Revelation, formed the moſt juſt Conceptions of the Divinity; carried their Speculations to the greateſt Virtue, and, in Practice, conformed to their Tenets, bluſhed not to be ſeen at the Theatre; where they beheld their moral Precepts, as it were, exemplified, and, in a lively Manner, inculcated.

Rome, the venerable Miſtreſs of the World, perceived her Courage, which, for ſome Time, bordered upon Savage Fury, refined into a generous Valour, and herſelf become the Civilizer, as well as Viſtreſs of Nations, after ſhe received the Advantages of the Threatic, among other polite Arts:—Her Scipio's, her Cato's, and Cicero's, as great Enemies to immoral Pleaſures, as Lovers of their Country, were far from diſdaining the Entertainment of the Stage.—Thus we ſee that, in the two States of Antiquity, moſt famed for Virtue, and the Arts of Peace and War (and to which we are indebted for much of our Knowledge in them) the Drama was conſidered, and adopted, as one of the moſt rational and beneficial Species of Poetry.

After the Glories of theſe illuſtrious States were eclipſed, and Learning and Taſte ſeemed buried in their Ruins; when almoſt every Monument of their former Grandeur, was effaced by thoſe barbarous Hords of Northern Nations, who ſpoiled and devaſtated the Face of the Earth; when Europe lay long ſunk in Gothic Barbarity and Monkiſh Ignorance, which diſfigured her in almoſt every Kind of Production, and bathed in the Blood of perſecuted Sects, the Drama aſſiſted her to emerge out of this State of profound Barbariſm, and lent its powerful Aid, to diſpel thoſe dark Clouds that obſcured the human Underſtanding, and to diffuſe Humanity and good Taſte, where gloomy Superſtition, and the romantic Spirit of Chivalry prevailed.

Europe, then became in a great Degree, happy and reformed, when ſhe beheld an Arioſto and Taſſo, a Lopez de Vega, a Corneille, a Racine and Moliere, and a Shakeſpear and Johnſon, bringing on the Stage, the great Heroes and vicious Monſters of paſt Ages, for the Inſtruction of her Sons, or correcting and refining, by the Satire and Ridicule of Comedy, the groſs Manners prevalent:—For, as it is remarked, by the celebrated Voltaire,—"Almoſt all the Nations of Europe, began to ſee the Neceſſity of encouraging the Theatric Arts, which promote Society, ſoften the Manners, and inculcate Morality, under the Veil of Pleaſure."

What profitable Amuſement do, or may we not reap, from the many noble Tragedies, and elegant Comedies, now performed on the Britiſh Stage?

"As a perfect Tragedy (ſays the elegant and pious Addiſon) is the nobleſt Production of human Nature, ſo it is capable of giving the Mind one of the moſt delightful and improving Entertainments. A virtuous Man, ſays Seneca, ſtruggling with Misfortunes, is ſuch a Spectacle as the Gods themſelves might look upon with Pleaſure; and ſuch a Pleaſure it is, which one meets with in the Repreſentation of a well written Tragedy. Diverſions of this Kind, wear out of our Thoughts every Thing that is mean and little. They cultivate and cheriſh that Humanity which is the Ornament of our Nature. They ſoften Inſolence, ſooth Afflictions, and ſubdue the Mind to the Diſpenſations of Providence." For indeed, what Boſom does not feel itſelf warmed into the moſt reſolute Sentiments of Virtue, when we ſee moſt affectingly repreſented, the brave Man, under the Preſſure of Calamity, bold in conſcious Virtue; unſhaken and ſteady amidſt the greateſt Misfortunes, at length riſing ſuperior to them, or ending a well-ſpent Life, in full Aſſurance of being rewarded, with eternal Happineſs—thus powerfully teaching us, to perſevere in Rectitude, and ſubmit to the Law of Deſtiny, without repining.—Here we behold imaged, towering Ambition, after reaching the higheſt Pinacle of falſe Grandeur, by a precipitate Fall, affording a ſtriking Example for deterring us, from being hurried away by its wild Impulſes. We ſee gloomy Faction, and dark Conſpiracy, by a fatal Cataſtrophe, cloſing a Scene of continual Anxiety, Tumult, and Horror.——The infatuated Gameſter, after having diſſipated every Means of Subſiſtence, and involved his innocent Family in Beggary and Ruin, flying from the Pangs of Remorſe to the Commiſſion of a Crime, which cuts him off from Repentance, and makes him ſeal his own eternal Doom.—The wicked, oppreſſive, and unjuſt, tormented with the keeneſt Feelings, extremely wretched, though wallowing in Riches and clothed with Authority.—Revenge driving him who harbours it, into Crimes that diſtract the Soul, and baniſh Peace for ever——In ſhort, Tragedy paints in the moſt lively Colours, the Evils ariſing from the Predominance of every evil Paſſion, puts the Spectator on his Guard againſt the Diſorders of them, and makes him who is conſcious of ſuch a wrong Bias, take the Alarm, and dread falling into the like Misfortunes.—It elevates the Genius, awakens our ſympathetic Feelings, pourtrays the Struggles of the human Soul, excites our Virtue, ſoſters the Spirit of Liberty, and animates us to Glory, delighting while thus profiting.—The ſoundeſt Morality therefore, ornamented and embelliſhed with the irreſiſtible Pathos of marvellous Eloquence and ſublime Diction, and enforced by the Graces of Elocution and Action, cannot but make the livelieſt Impreſſion upon every Heart not entirely diveſted of Senſibility. So far with Regard to Tragedy.

COMEDY, is of the greateſt Efficacy and Utility, in correcting and rooting out, by expoſing, with Humour and Ridicule, a Variety of ſmaller Vices and Failings, which do not ſo properly fall under the Cenſure of more ſerious Compoſitions, or where ſuch would have leſs Effect. It forms the Taſte, mends the Manners, laughs Vanity out of Conceit of itſelf, and, by holding the Mirror up to Folly, puts her out of Countenance.—So that the Comic Writers have been of no ſmall Advantage to the Improvement of Society; ſince they

"Too, have, with living Precepts, urg'd the moral Truth,
"And, by Example, form'd the yielding Youth;
"The titled Knave with honeſt Freedom ſhown,
"His Perſon mimick'd, nor his Name unknown;
"Taught the young Breaſt with op'ning Thoughts to raiſe,
"From Dread of Infamy, to Love of Praiſe:
"No venial Slip their quick Attention 'ſcapes,
"They trace each Proteus in a hundred Shapes;
"To Mirth's Tribunal drag the caitiff Train,
"Where Mercy ſleeps, and Nature pleads in Vain."

In fine, Addiſon, Young, Rowe, Hoadly, Home, and a Cloud of other reſpectable Authorities, might be brought in Support and Defence of the Drama; Men who, though they have with their Pens and Voices promoted Religion, and advanced the ſacred Cauſe of Chriſtianity, yet did not think it beneath them, not only to commend, but even to add to, the Amuſements of the Stage.

With Reſpect to Theatric Elocution and Geſture,—It was obſerved by the eminent Voltaire, "that they require all the Gifts of Nature, joined to a great Underſtanding and unwearied Application."—Is there then ſo much Reaſon for annexing a Mark of Degradation to the Profeſſion of the Actor; For,

"Shall they, who trace the Paſſions from their Riſe,
"Shew ſcorn her Features, her own Image Vice,
"Who teach the Mind its proper Force to ſcan,
"And hold the Faithful Mirror up to Man:
"Shall their Profeſſion ever provoke Diſdain,
"Who ſtand the foremoſt in the moral Train;
"Who lend Reflexion all the Force of Art,
"And ſtrike the Precept Home upon the Heart."

This World is a Stage, on which all Men are Actors; the Applauſe or Cenſure ſhewn, will depend, in the Eyes of the diſcerning, not ſo much upon the Characters and Stations pointed out by Reaſon or Genius, or allotted to us by Fortune, as upon the Manner of our diſcharging our ſeveral Parts; for, as Mr. Pope rightly obſerves,

"Honour and Shame from no Conviction riſe,
"Act well your Part, in that the Honour lies."

ESSAY ON MAN.

Finally, though it be admitted that the Purity of the Drama hath ſometimes been corrupted, yet it muſt be remembered, that the Abuſe of any Thing, is no Argument againſt the Uſe of it; for what is there ſo perfect as may not be perverted or miſapplied, even Religion's ſacred ſelf may be counterfeited, or made the Engine for promoting the vileſt Purpoſes, and executing the moſt attrocious Deſigns. And although there are ſome Tragedies which do not abound in the moſt intereſting Incidents, or convey the moſt inſtructive Morals; and ſome of our Comedies are not void of Ribaldry and Obſcenity, yet there are very few of the former from which ſome Benefit may not be derived, and moſt of the latter are in a great Meaſure diſuſed or baniſhed from the Stage. But all evil Conſequences that might ariſe therefrom, are eaſily obviated, by a judicious Selection

I. WE preſent as an Evil, and a very growing one, the keeping Numbers of idle and uſeleſs Slaves in Charles-Town, to the great Prejudice thereof; as it is well known they are generally wanton, miſchievous and thieviſh, and are a great Means of preventing Induſtry amongſt the white Inhabitants.

II. We preſent as a very great GRIEVANCE, That the Keepers of every Goal in the Province do not publiſh the Names and a full Deſcription of every Fugitive Slave confined in their reſpective Goals, together with the Names of the People to whom they belong, at leaſt once every Month in all the GAZETTES of this Province.

III. We preſent as a GRIEVANCE, The Duty on Naval Stores and Lumber from the neighbouring Provinces, and recommend that it ſhould be taken off.

IV. We preſent as a GRIEVANCE, The general Neglect of the Officers of Militia throughout the Province, for not muſtering and training the different Companies as often as the Law requires.

V. We preſent as a very great GRIEVANCE, The almoſt total Neglect of the Patrol Duty.

VI. We preſent Theodore Gaillard, of the Pariſh of St. James, Santee, for ſtopping and changing the King's High Road on Wambaw for his own Convenience, to the great Hindrance and Prejudice of Travellers; by the Information of the Commiſſioners of the Roads in the above Pariſh.

VII. We do moſt earneſtly recommend the incorporating of this Town, as the only Means that will effectually remove many Enormities, and redreſs many GRIEVANCES; and likewiſe to add to introduce many wiſe and ſalutary Regulations.

Laſtly, We recommend that theſe our Preſentments may be printed in all our GAZETTES.

The foregoing Reflexions were occasioned by a Discourse, or rather a Rhapsody, delivered last Evening by an itinerant Preacher, of the Methodistical Sect, which he intended as a Sermon to the Youth of this Place: In which, after having spoken very little against the ruinous Consequences, of the Vices of Gaming, Drunkenness, profane Swearing, &c. which might have afforded him so ample a Field for doing Good, he virulently attacked the polite and innocent Amusements of Concerts and Assemblies, which are conducted with the strictest Regard to Decorum, and threw out the most illiberal Invectives against the Amusements of the Stage.—With a Torrent of bloated Eloquence, he charged the dramatic Performances with corrupting the Heart, and leading to "Damnation," without adducing one solid and convincing (or indeed any) Argument, in Support of what he advanced. He barely said, they were of pernicious Consequences, without in the least shewing how, or wherein they were so.—"Your boasted Cato," cried he, "encourages the horrid Crime of Suicide;" but let me inform this very discerning Gentleman (if Propriety will warrant the Appellation) that this noble Tragedy tends directly to the contrary; for although that Crime was authorized by general Opinion, and deemed highly heroic, at the Time when that great Man lived, yet the judicious Addison makes his Hero fear he has done Wrong, and even in his last Moments express his Repentance——

"——Alas! I fear
"I have been too hasty: O ye Powers that search
"The Heart of Man, and weigh his inmost Thoughts,
"If I have done amiss, impute it not,
"The best may err, but you are good.—"

And if a Heathen, in Spite of common Belief and Error, is thus supposed to fear the Unlawfulness of Suicide, a fortiori, in what Light must it appear to a Christian, who, by the Precepts of his hallowed Religion, is expressly enjoined to abhor this Crime. This too is the Tragedy of which that eminent Critic Mr. Pope thus speaks,

"Envy itself is dumb, in Wonder lost,
"And Factions strive who shall applaud it most."

Our Orator, then uncharitably proceeded to Aspersions, against the Comedians, Persons with whom he is wholly unacquainted; and even if they are such, as he represented them to be, is this proud Pharisee yet to learn, that it is the Duty of a Christian Divine to rail at Vices, and not particular Persons; for he who deviates from this Principle, may reasonably expect to be involved in Discord and Animosities, totally incompatible with that peaceful Character he professes, and instead of reclaiming the Vicious, he, by raising their Resentment and casting the Cloud of Passion over their Reason, incapacitates them from clearly discerning the Truth, or piques them to persist in their Errors. It must be remarked too, that the Manager of this Company, hath conducted both it and himself, in such a Manner, as not to be condemned by a Society of Men, remarkable for the Strictness of their Principles, and Purity of their Morals, I mean the Inhabitants of Philadelphia (a City universally admired for the Excellency of its Police) where they have been permitted to establish a Theatre, and performed for a considerable Time.——And as to the genteel Epithet of Vagabonds, wherewith he stigmatizes them, the Term, many think, may, with as much or more Propriety, be retorted upon himself.—And if any Regard is to be paid to what this Belcher of Scandal utters forth, what Numbers of virtuous Matrons, and unblemished Fair, would not lay under the Imputation of immodest; for, said he, "No modest Woman ever went, or would go, to a Play-House!" Nor did this Trumpeter of Calumny stop here, but with the most unparalleled Effrontery, dared to arraign and condemn, as most pernicious, the Conduct of our Governor and Council, for authorizing a Theatre in this Town; and insinuated that he (the Governor) would be the principal Cause of the Ruin of all those who should frequent the Play-House, against whom he fulminated Vengeance, and doomed to Damnation.—What! shall a calumniating V—g—t, endeavour thus to prejudice a People against their superior Magistrate, a Gentleman as remarkable for the Amiableness and Regularity of his private Life, as for the Integrity of his public Conduct, and who is esteemed, an Honour and Ornament to the Community, of which he is now the principal Member? Shall that Character be censured by a presumptuous Brawler, the Fairness of which not even the Breath of Malice or Envy has ever hitherto assayed to sully? Shall he be suffered too to cry out, that the People of this Town are immoral and licentious, because they subscribe to a Play-House; and condemn a Number of Gentlemen, conspicuous for their Liberality, in promoting every charitable and laudable Undertaking? What Return would not our Orator have met with, had he not the good Luck of being thought an Object, worthier of Contempt than Resentment? He might probably before this have harangued from the St—cks, and thundered Anathemas from the P———y. And this pharisaical C—x—m—b, because he has by his consummate Impudence, by the Help of a tolerable Memory, and the Advantages of a limited Reading, acquired a Facility of prating, and treasured up a Jumble of other Men's Sentiments and Scripture Texts, which he rapes out and applies without Reason or Judgment, presumes to think himself licenced to say what he pleases. And does the canonical B—ff—n imagine, that because he beholds a crowded Audience, some of whom perhaps come through no other Motive, than that of seeing and being seen, and others, to be diverted with his absurd Grimaces, unnatural Contorsions, and violent Gesticulations, as they would be with the tumbling of a Merry-Andrew or learned Speech of a Mountebank? I say, does he imagine that they are converted by the Power of his divine Preaching, or attracted by the Charms of his Eloquence? If he does, O rare Deception! However, I will allow, that he has some well meaning and pious minded Persons, who neglect few Opportunities of repairing to any Place of Worship where they think there is a Chance of being edified. But I had almost forgot to mention, how I was taken with his pretty Action, in displaying the sparkling Ring which encircles his holy tapering white Finger, and how gracefully he exercises his Fan, when by Reason of the Vehemence of his ravishing Eloquence, his delicate Features are suffused with a soft Langour, and his tender Frame quite overpowered by his diving Ravings! Who can behold, without the highest Admiration, his fair Hand waving his * golden Time-Admonisher, with its dazzling Appendages.

And this is the ranting Zani, who has the astonishing Assurance to censure, without the least Reason, our Governor and Council; endeavour to cast a Stigma upon virtuous Ladies, and threaten to consign almost all of us (who are not his Elect) to the Devil.

He rail too at the Players! when
"Not less a Player the Methodist appears,
"In some ——— his casual Stage he rears,
"Profane, loquacious, insolent, and loud;
"The Grave Jack-Pudding of a sniv'ling Croud,
"Who, promis'd Heav'n in Change for Pence receive,
"For they who teach to die know how to live."

* Our Orator in every Discourse, after prating more than an Hour, pulls out his Watch, and cries out, "the Time admonishes me;" by which he gratifies his Vanity, in shewing his fine Gold Watch, and insinuating, that Time, and not his inexhaustible Rhetoric, fails him.

"Pompous Nocienfe (says the Connoisseur, N°. 116) bellowed out with a thund'ring Accent, comes worse from the Pulpit, than Bombast and Fustian rasted forth by a Perriwig-pated Fellow from the Stage."

Now good Mr. Thunder-Text, in Return for the very great Edification I among others have received from you, by your Leave, I shall be so grateful as to give you a few Hints. In the first Place, If you would have us think you are really what you pretend to be, instead of shooling (as it is commonly termed) only at those Tables that are covered with the best the Place and Seasons afford, deign Sir, to visit the humble Habitations of the Poor, search out the needy Sick, whom you may relieve both in a spiritual and temporal Way. And as we have a sufficient Number of Ministers, who appear far superior to you in Learning, Humility, Charity, and other Christian Virtues, if you had that unfeigned Zeal for propagating Christianity, which you affect to have, you would repair to the back Parts of this Province, where there are a great Number of poor uninstructed People, not only destitute of Preachers and Schools, but many even without the Advantages of the holy Scriptures, pious Sermons, and other good Books, in all which we happily abound—Go there I say—Nay! I'll warrant you will not.—No, think you, there I shall not be pampered with Dainties and swill'd with good Wine.—"There † I shall not be fed upon a Feast of fat "Things, Things full of Marrow, and old Wine, not a weak "Wine, Wine fed upon its own Lees.——Wine you know "chears the Heart of Man." Instead of a polite Audience, and the pleasing Hope of handsome Donations, I shall only have a Croud of poor Rustics, from whom I can expect nothing, and whose beggarly Souls are scarce worth the Trouble of saving.—But, if I may be allowed to "compare mean Things with great," I am afraid, go where you will, like a malignant Planet, you will shed your baleful Influence, as you pass along. In the next Place, for the Benefit of all those who may have any Concern with you, and for the Good of your own "dear immortal and precious Soul," give me Leave to advise you, to divest yourself of that uncharitable Pride, and offensive Arrogance, for which you are but too remarkable, and which have led you into a gross Violation of good Manners, in many of the Companies where you have been admitted.—And as your fine Watch and Ring look too much like Trinkets of mere Vanity, and Articles of Pride, convert them into Specie for the good of the numerous Poor at your Orphan-House. And lastly, As your Fan is rather too foppish a Toy for the Pulpit, be advised to lay it aside, lest you be suspected of flirting it at some fat Lamb of your Flock, while you, innocent Sir, are affecting to fear above all carnal Thoughts. In a Word,

"Define male dicere alios, ne tua mala cognoscas."

ATTICUS.

P. S. As you are a free spoken Gentleman, if any Thing in the latter Part of these Animadversions, should savour of Illiberality, my Apology will be, that I have endeavoured to adapt it to the Person to whom it is addressed.

† The Words of a well chosen Text thus modified by him, upon which he made a most ingenious and edifying Discourse.

CHARLES-TOWN, OCTOBER 25.

THE Ship launched at Hobcaw laſt Monday, for Capt. Urquhart, is called the BRITON, and deſigned for the London Trade. Another large Ship, for Capt. Eſon, is near ready for launching, at Beaufort, Port-Royal.—We have now no leſs than Twelve Carolina built Ships, conſtantly employed in the Trade between this Port and Europe, viz.

The Live-Oak, Capt. Lundberry,	built in 1749
The Fair-American, Capt. Minſhall,	1762
The Heart-of-Oak, Capt. Gunn,	1763
The St. George, Capt. Muir,	1765
The St. Helena, Capt. Arthar,	1766
The Liberty, Capt. Laſley,	1767
The Queen, Capt. Harriſon,	1769
The Charming-Sally, Capt. Fortune,	1769
The Magna-Charta, Capt. Maitland,	1770
The Carolina-Packet, Capt. White,	1771
The Pallas, Capt. Turner,	1771
The Briton, Capt. Urquhart,	1773

Robert H. Halliday, Eſq; and the Reſt of the Paſſengers that came in Capt. Maitland's Ship, from London, landed here laſt Friday Evening; the Ship came in the next Day.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor has been pleaſed to appoint the following Gentlemen to be Sheriffs, agreeable to the Directions of the Circuit Court Act, viz.

Thomas Grimball, Eſq;	for Charles-Town,	Diſtrict.
Edward Martin, Eſq;	George Town,
Michael Smith, Eſq;	Beaufort,
William-Henry Mills, Eſq;	Cheraws,
John Fiſher, Eſq;	Orangeburg,
John Wylly, Eſq;	Camden,
Robert Stark, Eſq;	Ninety-Six,

Laſt Monday died, to the great Grief of the Family, and its numerous Connections, Maſter Charles Elliott, a very promiſing Youth, and only Son of Charles Elliott, Eſquire.

The ſame Day died at George-Town, and was brought from thence and interred here on Wedneſday laſt, Mrs. Elizabeth Packrow, aged 77 Years, who was a Native of Philadelphia, arrived here at the Age of Five Years,—and through the Courſe of her Life delighted in Services to the Sick.

The whole 29th Regiment ſailed for England, laſt Saturday ſe'nnight, in the Tranſport Ships which brought them here.

On Saturday laſt, arrived here in the Scooner Liberty, Capt. Roberts from Eaſt-Florida, George Gore, Maſter, and the Crew (19 in Number) of the Brigantine Suſannah, of and from Jamaica for this Port, which, with the Cargo, was entirely loſt on Indian River, near Smyrna, about the 15th of laſt Month. Capt. Roberts was 23 Days on his Paſſage, and 10 Days ago, ſpoke with a Sloop from Hiſpaniola, one Clayton, Maſter, but could not hear where it was bound.

Amongſt the Paſſengers lately arrived here, which we have accidentally omitted to mention, are Mr. Thomas Leech, of London; Mr. Burn of this Town; Doct. Maurice Lee, Nephew, and Miſs Haly, Daughter, of Doct. John Haly.

On the 8th Inſtant died, at Black-Mingo, where he had juſt ſettled a Store, Mr. Joſhua Hirſt, a young Gentleman of ſo many good Qualities, that every one who knew, reſpected him, and now laments his Death.

Laſt Wedneſday died here, much regretted by his Friends, Capt. Iſaac Fordyce, late Maſter of the Scooner Tobago Packet.

A Letter from St. Auguſtine dated the 11th Inſtant, mentions the Death of Lieut. Mattier and Enſign Hallwood, both of His Majeſty's 14th Regiment, and much regretted; the former on the 11th, and the latter on the 22d of laſt Month, of a malignant Fever, which had made great Havock there.

Yeſterday ſailed with the Mails for Great-Britain, His Majeſty's Packet-Boat Le Deſpencer, commanded by Capt. William Pond.

Yeſterday died Mr. Charles Strother.

DIRECTIONS concerning Temperance of EATING, and the Uſe and Abuſe of WINE.

THERE is no ſuch variety in the appetites and conſtitutions of mankind, that no fixed rules can be laid down in regard to the quality of aliments. In general, the more ſimple our food is, the better. Animal and vegetable food ſhould always be mixed together by people in health. That nature intended man ſhould be ſupported by them both, we infer from the ſtructure of his teeth and organs of digeſtion. The proportion of vegetable food ſhould always predominate, eſpecially in warm ſeaſons and warm climates. Wild animals, and thoſe who are full grown, ſhould be preferred to tame and young animals, as being more eaſy of digeſtion. For the ſame reaſon, fleſh, which has been kept for ſome time, is to be preferred to that which is newly killed.

Much has been ſaid againſt high-ſeaſoned food. To perſons in the full vigour of health and youth, I grant it may be hurtful; but to old, and to ſickly people who are afflicted with a general torpor of the alimentary canal, it is not only inoffenſive, but abſolutely neceſſary. High-ſeaſoned food is likewiſe neceſſary to the inhabitants of low, marſhy countries, more eſpecially at thoſe ſeaſons of the year, when the diſeaſes of ſuch places are epidemic.

Little miſchief is done to the conſtitution by the quality of aliment. Nature, for the moſt part, takes the alarm, and unleſs we uſe violence with her, deprives us of our reliſh for thoſe things which are deſtructive to our conſtitutions.

Food may be ſaid to be taken in too great a quantity, when we do not feel light and chearful after it. There are few who do not eat one third or a fourth more than what is neceſſary to ſupport them. The chief incentive to this is, the variety of our diſhes, which excites us to eat after the appetite is ſatisfied. Few men, I believe, ever eat to exceſs more than once of one plain diſh.

Next to eating of but one diſh, I would recommend eating but one hearty meal a-day. In ſupport of this piece of advice, I might here ſummon many of the illuſtrious dead among the ancient philoſophers and legiſlators, who never eat more than one hearty meal in the four and twenty hours. So common was this ſimplicity of living in Greece, that Plato, upon being aſked, when he returned to Athens from his travels into Sicily, what he had ſeen that was curious while abroad? anſwered, 'I have beheld,' ſaid he, 'a monſter in nature, a man who eat two hearty meals in a day.' Theſe are more than ſufficient to repair the daily waſte of the body. They oppreſs nature, and keep her conſtantly fatigued in concocting the immenſe ſupplies of food which are thrown into the ſtomach. Although ſhe ſometimes forbears long, yet, ſooner or later, ſhe takes ample vengeance of ſuch as treat her in this manner, by afflicting them with blotches, and other diſorders which are the legitimate offſpring of this ſpecies of intemperance. But, if we are to eat only one hearty meal a day, a queſtion very naturally occurs, at what time it ſhould be taken?

It is well known to every one, that exerciſe of mind or body is diſagreeable after dinner. Nature recoils from them both. Every full meal is a ſtimulus to the whole ſyſtem, and brings on a temporary fever, which ſhews itſelf in that chillneſs and quickneſs of the pulſe, which are ſo very remarkable after eating. To add to theſe either exerciſe of body or mind is to divide and weaken the powers of nature in a work which requires the combined action of them all. Upon this account, I think the principal meal ſhould be in the evening.

The old Romans, we find, in the early and virtuous ages of their commonwealth, made their chief meal after night. The French and Italians make ſupper their principal meal. The Indians, who live the moſt agreeable to nature of any people in the world, eat fleſh but once in the four and twenty hours, and that is in the evening, after the fatigues of fiſhing, hunting, or marching are over. The Spaniards, who have not yet adopted the French and Italian cuſtom of making their chief meal at night, are nevertheleſs ſo unanimous in the practice of ſleeping an hour or two after dinner, that it is a common thing to hear a Spaniard ſay, in moſt of the cities of Spain, that 'none but Engliſhmen and dogs are to be ſeen in their ſtreets immediately after dinner.' Sleep is always natural after eating. It is common to all the brute animals we are acquainted with; that ſtate of the body or mind, which approaches neareſt to it, is always moſt agreeable to us, when we cannot enjoy it immediately. Hence we read, that many ancient nations uſed to recline upon beds or cuſhions, and to lean upon each other at their entertainments. This poſture in eating was practiſed by the Greeks Romans, and Perſians, nor was it uncommon among the Jews. But what proves above all things, that reſt and ſleep are neceſſary after eating, is, that digeſtion has been lately proved to be carried on chiefly by fermentation, to which reſt, every body knows, is ſo effectually neceſſary, that it cannot take place without it. Unleſs the body enjoys more or leſs of this after eating, there can be no perfect concoction of the food. This is what all muſt conſent to, who have been obliged to ride on horſeback, or to uſe any violent exerciſe of body, after a hearty dinner. The digeſtion, in ſuch caſes, is ſo diſturbed, that perſons have complained of being indiſpoſed for ſeveral days after it.

But ſome may object and ſay, that eating a hearty ſupper makes them reſtleſs in the night, and prevents their ſleeping: To ſuch I would with joy: It is a proof, that nature has not yet ſunk under the weight of two hearty meals a day; for I never heard any one make this complaint who did not likewiſe eat a hearty dinner. Leave off dining in your uſual manner, and, inſtead of eating half a pound, or a pound of fleſh, with vegetables, proportioned to it, allay your appetite with a little bread and cheeſe, a bowl of light ſoup, a cup of coffee or chocolate after the French cuſtom, with a few raiſins or an apple; and I am perſuaded you will feel no inconvenience from eating a moderate ſupper. The more of theſe light ſubſtances, it may be remarked, you eat through the day, the better, as they tend to leſſen the ſenſe of hunger, or the keenneſs of the appetite, which too often provokes us to intemperance. Sir Francis Bacon tells us a ſtory of a very old man, whoſe manner of living he enquired into, and found that he obſerved no other rules than eating before he was hungry, and drinking before he was dry; for by theſe methods, he ſaid, he was ſure never to eat nor to drink too much at a time. If we appeal once more to the brute animals, they will furniſh us with arguments in favour of this practice. Every analogy, borrowed from them, deſerves to be attended to, as they have never yet ſubjected their inſtincts to the tyranny of paſſion. The cow, or the horſe, as alſo the ſheep, when they range at large in a paſture, feed with little interruption during the day, and thus guard againſt the intemperate effects of hunger. The horſe, it is true, ſometimes ſuffers from this cauſe; but it is only when he is obliged to live as we do, that is, to divide his meals into three or four in a day, and to work immediately afterwards. It is univerſally agreed, that people live much longer in warm than in cold climates. May not one reaſon of this be owing to the heat of ſuch climates diminiſhing their appetites, and thus preventing their wearing out their conſtitutions by exceſs in eating?

The diſeaſes, in which wine is indicated, are, firſt, the ſlow nervous fever. Here the powers of nature are weakened and oppreſſed, and the poor patient may, ſtrictly ſpeaking, be ſaid to be ready to periſh. Wine may be adminiſtered therefore in ſuch caſes with advantage: If ever it fails of doing ſervice, it is becauſe it is given in too ſmall a quantity. Secondly, in chronic diſeaſes which are accompanied with a langour of the whole ſyſtem, which ſhews itſelf in a more eſpecial manner in the ſtomach, wine is a ſovereign remedy. The relief afforded, in theſe caſes, is the more certain, if the weakneſs of the ſyſtem has been brought on by grief, or any of thoſe paſſions which are of the ſedative kind. Here the heart is revived, and made to ſing for joy.

Wine is ſometimes neceſſary to the inhabitants of low marſhy countries. The moiſture of ſuch places obſtructs perſpiration, and brings on a general laxity of the ſyſtem. When uſed in a moderate quantity, it braces the ſolids, and, by keeping up a proper balance between them and the fluids, it obviates diſeaſes. Hence we ſeldom find thoſe people who live in affluence, and who can afford to drink a glaſs or two of generous wine every day, afflicted with thoſe fevers and agues which make great havock among poor people. The Hollanders have been charged with the national reflection of loving ſtrong drink. This cenſure is unjuſt; as neceſſity at firſt drove them to it; and it is by uſing wine, and other ſpirituous liquors in moderation, that they guard themſelves from the ill effects of the moiſture to which their country is always expoſed.

Wine is principally uſed to old people, or ſuch as are in the decline of life. It is hard to fix the limits between the beginning of old-age and the cloſe of manhood. At a medium, the body begins to decline at the age of forty-five, or fifty. Then the hot fit of the fever of life begins to abate; and, upon the many diſappointments in love, friendſhip, ambition, or trade, which moſt men meet with at the time they arrive at this age, they generally feel a heavy heart. The decay of vital heat, the ſlowneſs of the pulſe, the diminution of its ſtrength, all ſhew that the vigour of the ſyſtem is declining. Here wine prolongs the ſtrength and powers of nature; it is the grave of paſt misfortunes. To enjoy a long reprieve from the infirmities of age, one muſt begin to uſe wine moderately, and increaſe the quantity of it, as we deſcend into the valley of life. Add to this, that the quantity of ſolid aliment ought to be diminiſhed. This nature points out to us, by depriving us of our teeth in proportion as we grow old, teaching us thereby, that we have no longer any uſe for them.

Children, from the natural vigour of their ſyſtems, which ſhews itſelf in the remarkable quickneſs of their pulſes, do not ſtand in need of wine. On the contrary, every thing ſhould be with-held from them, which tends to add to the natural impetuoſity of their fluids, or the vigorous action of their ſolids. Hence we are led to commend thoſe parents who forbid their children to taſte all kinds of animal food, upon the account of its ſtimulating quality, till they are upwards of ſeven or eight years of age.

Studious people, or thoſe who exerciſe their thinking qualities much, ſhould abſtain from wine. Thinking is a ſtimulus to the conſtitution, and wears out the ſprings of life beyond the moſt laborious exerciſe of the body. Much ſtudy is literally 'a wearineſs of the fleſh.' Hence we find, Stateſmen, Generals, and even ſuch as fill the learned profeſſions with dignity, are more ſubject to the gout, from ſmall deviations in their ordinary way of living, than other people. Wine, for a conſtant or vigorous exertion of the active faculties of the ſoul, produce nearly the ſame effects upon the body. Much recreation and exerciſe are neceſſary to guard againſt the effects of too much application of the mind to buſineſs; ſhould the ſtimulating effects of wine be added to this, relief will be ſought for in vain from amuſement.

By avoiding wine in the early part of life, you will receive benefit from it when you grow old. You will likewiſe eſcape that dreadful ſcourge of intemperance the gout. This is the natural offspring of wine. In the great empire of China the gout is unknown. This is owing to their being unacquainted with the juice of the grape, and is a proof that the other cauſes, which have been accuſed of bringing on the gout, act too feebly to produce it, unleſs they are rouzed into action by the uſe of wine. Beſides all this, by refraining from wine at an early period of life, you may become the fathers of a healthful progeny, whoſe ruddy looks, and well-formed limbs, will adorn your happy board, and more than repay you for your abſtinence and ſelf-denial.

MR. DE ST. PIERRE, having met with repeated and great Diſappointments, in his Attempt to introduce the MAKING of WINES at New-Bourdeaux, in the Back Parts of this Province, ſo as to render the ſame a conſiderable Branch of its Trade, merely by a Failure of that Support which he had Reaſon to expect, from ſome of the Perſons on whom he moſt relied, to advance the neceſſary Sums, to carry him through, and complete, this important Undertaking.

Having, nevertheleſs, under that, and many other Diſcouragements and Difficulties, ſtedfaſtly perſevered in his zealous Endeavours to accompliſh this great End, ſo far as, that he has introduced large Quantities of the beſt FOREIGN VINES that could be procured, as well from Europe as from other Places, and now hath four Acres, or thereabouts, of two Years Growth, in the higheſt Perfection, of which an excellent Wine may be next Year made, of a Quality between the Burgundy and Claret.

But, finding himſelf in no Condition to proceed, to attain this deſirable Object (although there is no Abatement of his Zeal and Attention) for Want of Cellars, Preſſes, and four able young Negroes, or rather of the Means to procure them; he finds himſelf reduced to the unhappy Neceſſity of ſoliciting the Aſſiſtance of Gentlemen of Public Spirit, and who wiſh to ſee ſuch an Undertaking ſucceed, by a Subſcription Loan of ſo ſmall a Sum as £. 2000 Currency, to be laid out in the following Manner, viz.—About £. 1600l. in the Purchaſe of four Slaves, to be ſeverally inſtructed and employed in the proper Management of the Wines, ſo as to enlarge the Vineyard;—without whoſe Aſſiſtance, that of four Acres, abovementioned, cannot be extended. The remaining £. 400 to be put into Mr. DE ST. PIERRE's Hands, to provide himſelf with Preſſes, and to build a Cellar, abſolutely neceſſary for preſerving the Wine, which will be quite different in its Nature from that made nearer the Topick, as at Madera and the Canaries.

If there ſhould be found Gentlemen who will advance the Sum now wanted, which he flatters himſelf there will, he propoſes that the Money ſo ſubſcribed, ſhall be paid into the Hands of a Committee choſen from among the Subſcribers, who ſhall lay out and take the proper Meaſures, to ſecure the ſame to the ſaid Subſcribers.

Beſides the Vineyard under his immediate Care, there are already ſeveral other flouriſhing Vineyards at New-Bourdeaux, under experienced Vignerons; and he expects to receive 50 or 60,000 Plants more, from Europe, this Year; for the Management of which particularly, he ſhall want the Negroes.

To conclude, upon the Reception this PROPOSAL meets with, greatly depends, whether this ſhall immediately become a WINE COUNTRY, or not.

 Subſcription-Papers are lodged in the Hands of Mr. JOHN CORAM, Merchant, and at Mr. WELLS, Mr. CROUCH, and T. POWELL & Company's Printing-Offices, in Charles-Town;—where Gentlemen, diſpoſed to aſſiſt Mr. DE ST. PIERRE, will pleaſe to give in their Names, and the Sums they are willing to advance, as ſoon as poſſible, it being of the utmoſt Conſequence to him, that the Application of the Subſcription-Money be made by the 1ſt Day of December next.—In which Caſe, his Vineyard may be enlarged next Year from Four to near Fifty Acres.

Not two BLANKS to a PRIZE.

THE growing Importance of the College of NEW-JERSEY, (for the Uſe of which the above Lottery is principally deſigned) is now generally known through every Province of America. It has hitherto ſubſiſted, and been raiſed to its preſent Situation, entirely by the Favour of the Public. In the Centre of North-America, and in a pleaſant, healthy Country, it is well fitted for the moſt extenſive Uſefulneſs. The Succeſs which has attended the vigorous Efforts already made, to raiſe its Funds, and furniſh the Means of a complete and finiſhed Education, to all who are ſent to it, has encouraged thoſe concerned in the preſent Attempt; eſpecially as ſeveral very judicious Perſons have warmly recommended it, ſignifying their Surprize, that at a Time, when ſo many have taken this Method of promoting public Undertakings, a SEMINARY, of ſuch Importance, ſhould not alſo put in for a Share of the general Benevolence. This, added to the other Schemes for the Support and Improvement of the College, will afford ſo many Friends of that Inſtitution, an Opportunity of contributing with very little Riſk of loſing, and a conſiderable Chance of Gain to themſelves, who would not incline hat the ſmall Sums they could ſpare, ſhould appear in a Subſcription Paper.

As a Number of Tickets are already engaged, and many Gentlemen of extenſive Acquaintance have intereſted themſelves in this Meaſure, the Drawing will commence the Firſt Week in October next, in the Town of New-Caſtle on Delaware, and a Liſt of the fortunate Numbers publiſhed, and ſent to the ſeveral Towns and Places where the Tickets may be ſold. The Prizes, after deducting Fifteen per Cent. for the Purpoſes of the Lottery, will be paid by the Gentlemen of whom they were purchaſed.

Orders for Tickets will be complied with, by applying to Richard Stockton, Jonathan Serjeant, Eſqrs. or Mr. Enos Kelſo, at Prince-Town; to William P. Smith, William Livingſton, or Robert Ogden, Eſqrs. at Elizabeth-Town, New-Jerſey; to Meſſrs. Broom and Co. at New-York; George Bryan, and Joſeph Read, Eſquires; Doctors William Shippen, John Redman, or Robert Harris, Meſſrs. Andrew Hodge, Gunning Bedford, William Henry, John Bayard, Iſaac Snowden, Jonathan B. Smith, William Semple, Robert Paiſley, or William and Thomas Bradford, of Philadelphia; Mr. David Walker, i[illegible]rt, on Potowmack, Maryland; Mr. Archibald M'Cl[illegible] Tappahannock; Mr. John Talliaferro, in Fredericksburg, and Mr. William Holt, Williamſburgh, Virginia; or to the following Gentlemen, viz. George Monro, David Finney, John Thomſon, and Nicholas Vandyke, Eſqrs; Meſſrs. Samuel Paterſon, and David Clarke, in New-Caſtle, who are appointed Managers of ſaid Lottery, and will be on Oath, for the faithful Diſcharge of the Truſt, repoſed in them.

☞ The Drawing of the above Lottery,

Is put off till the Beginning of November next, when it certainly will begin.——In the mean Time, Perſons deſirous of having Tickets, may be ſupplied, in a very ſhort Time, after giving their Orders, by leaving a Letter, directed to Meſſrs. THOMAS and WILLIAM BRADFORD, in Philadelphia, and the Amount of the Tickets, at the PRINTING-OFFICE on the BAY, near the EXCHANGE.

Anſonborough Starch Manufactory.

ROBERT STRINGER,

Begs Leave, through this Channel, to inform the PUBLIC,

That he now has to DISPOSE of,

And will continue to make for SALE,

POLAND and Common Starch; fine Hair-Powder, plain and ſcented, of the firſt Qualities, equal (if not ſuperior) to any imported.—The Proof of which, he with the greateſt Deference, ſubmits to his Cuſtomers, and particularly hopes for the Encouragement of ſuch who would wiſh to promote the Manufactures of this Province—if not the firſt Attempt of the Sort, the only one which has been brought to Perfection, more eſpecially, as the principal Ingredient uſed is RICE, one of our Staple Commodities. The Advantages which will accrue to the Merchant, who may be pleaſed to grant him his Favours, are too obvious to need inſerting in a News-Paper.

He begs Leave to make his moſt grateful Acknowledgment to thoſe who employed him laſt Seaſon, in the PURCHASING and GARBLING of INDICO, and flatters himſelf, that his Conduct therein, will recommend him to their future Favours.—Such as pleaſe to honour him with their Commands, in the above Buſineſs, the enſuing Seaſon, may depend on a diligent and faithful Diſcharge of the Truſt repoſed in him.

He likewiſe offers his Service to ſuch Planters who are not provided with Factors, by aſſiſting them in the Sale of their INDICO; and (as is too often the Caſe) if it contains any improper Mixture, he will ſort it to the beſt Advantage, and chearfully render every other Aſſiſtance in his Power, for the Benefit of his Employers.

To be HIRED out, by the Month,

On REASONABLE TERMS,

A ſmart, handy Waiting BOY,

Who has been uſed to attend about a Houſe, and is well acquainted with all Domeſtic Buſineſs, or taking Care of Horſes. For further Particulars, enquire at the Printing-Office on the BAY, near the EXCHANGE.
